PRINCIPAL
PETER J. CHRISOM

Principal Chrisom has been one of the significant leaders of the North Quincy High School community for 26 years. His knowledge and experience has benefited not only the students, but also the faculty and co-workers. The class of 1998 would like to take this opportunity to thank Principal Chrisom for his outstanding work for the school and his dedication to excellence and pride at North Quincy High School. His great personality and wonderful sense of humor will always be remembered by the class of 1998.

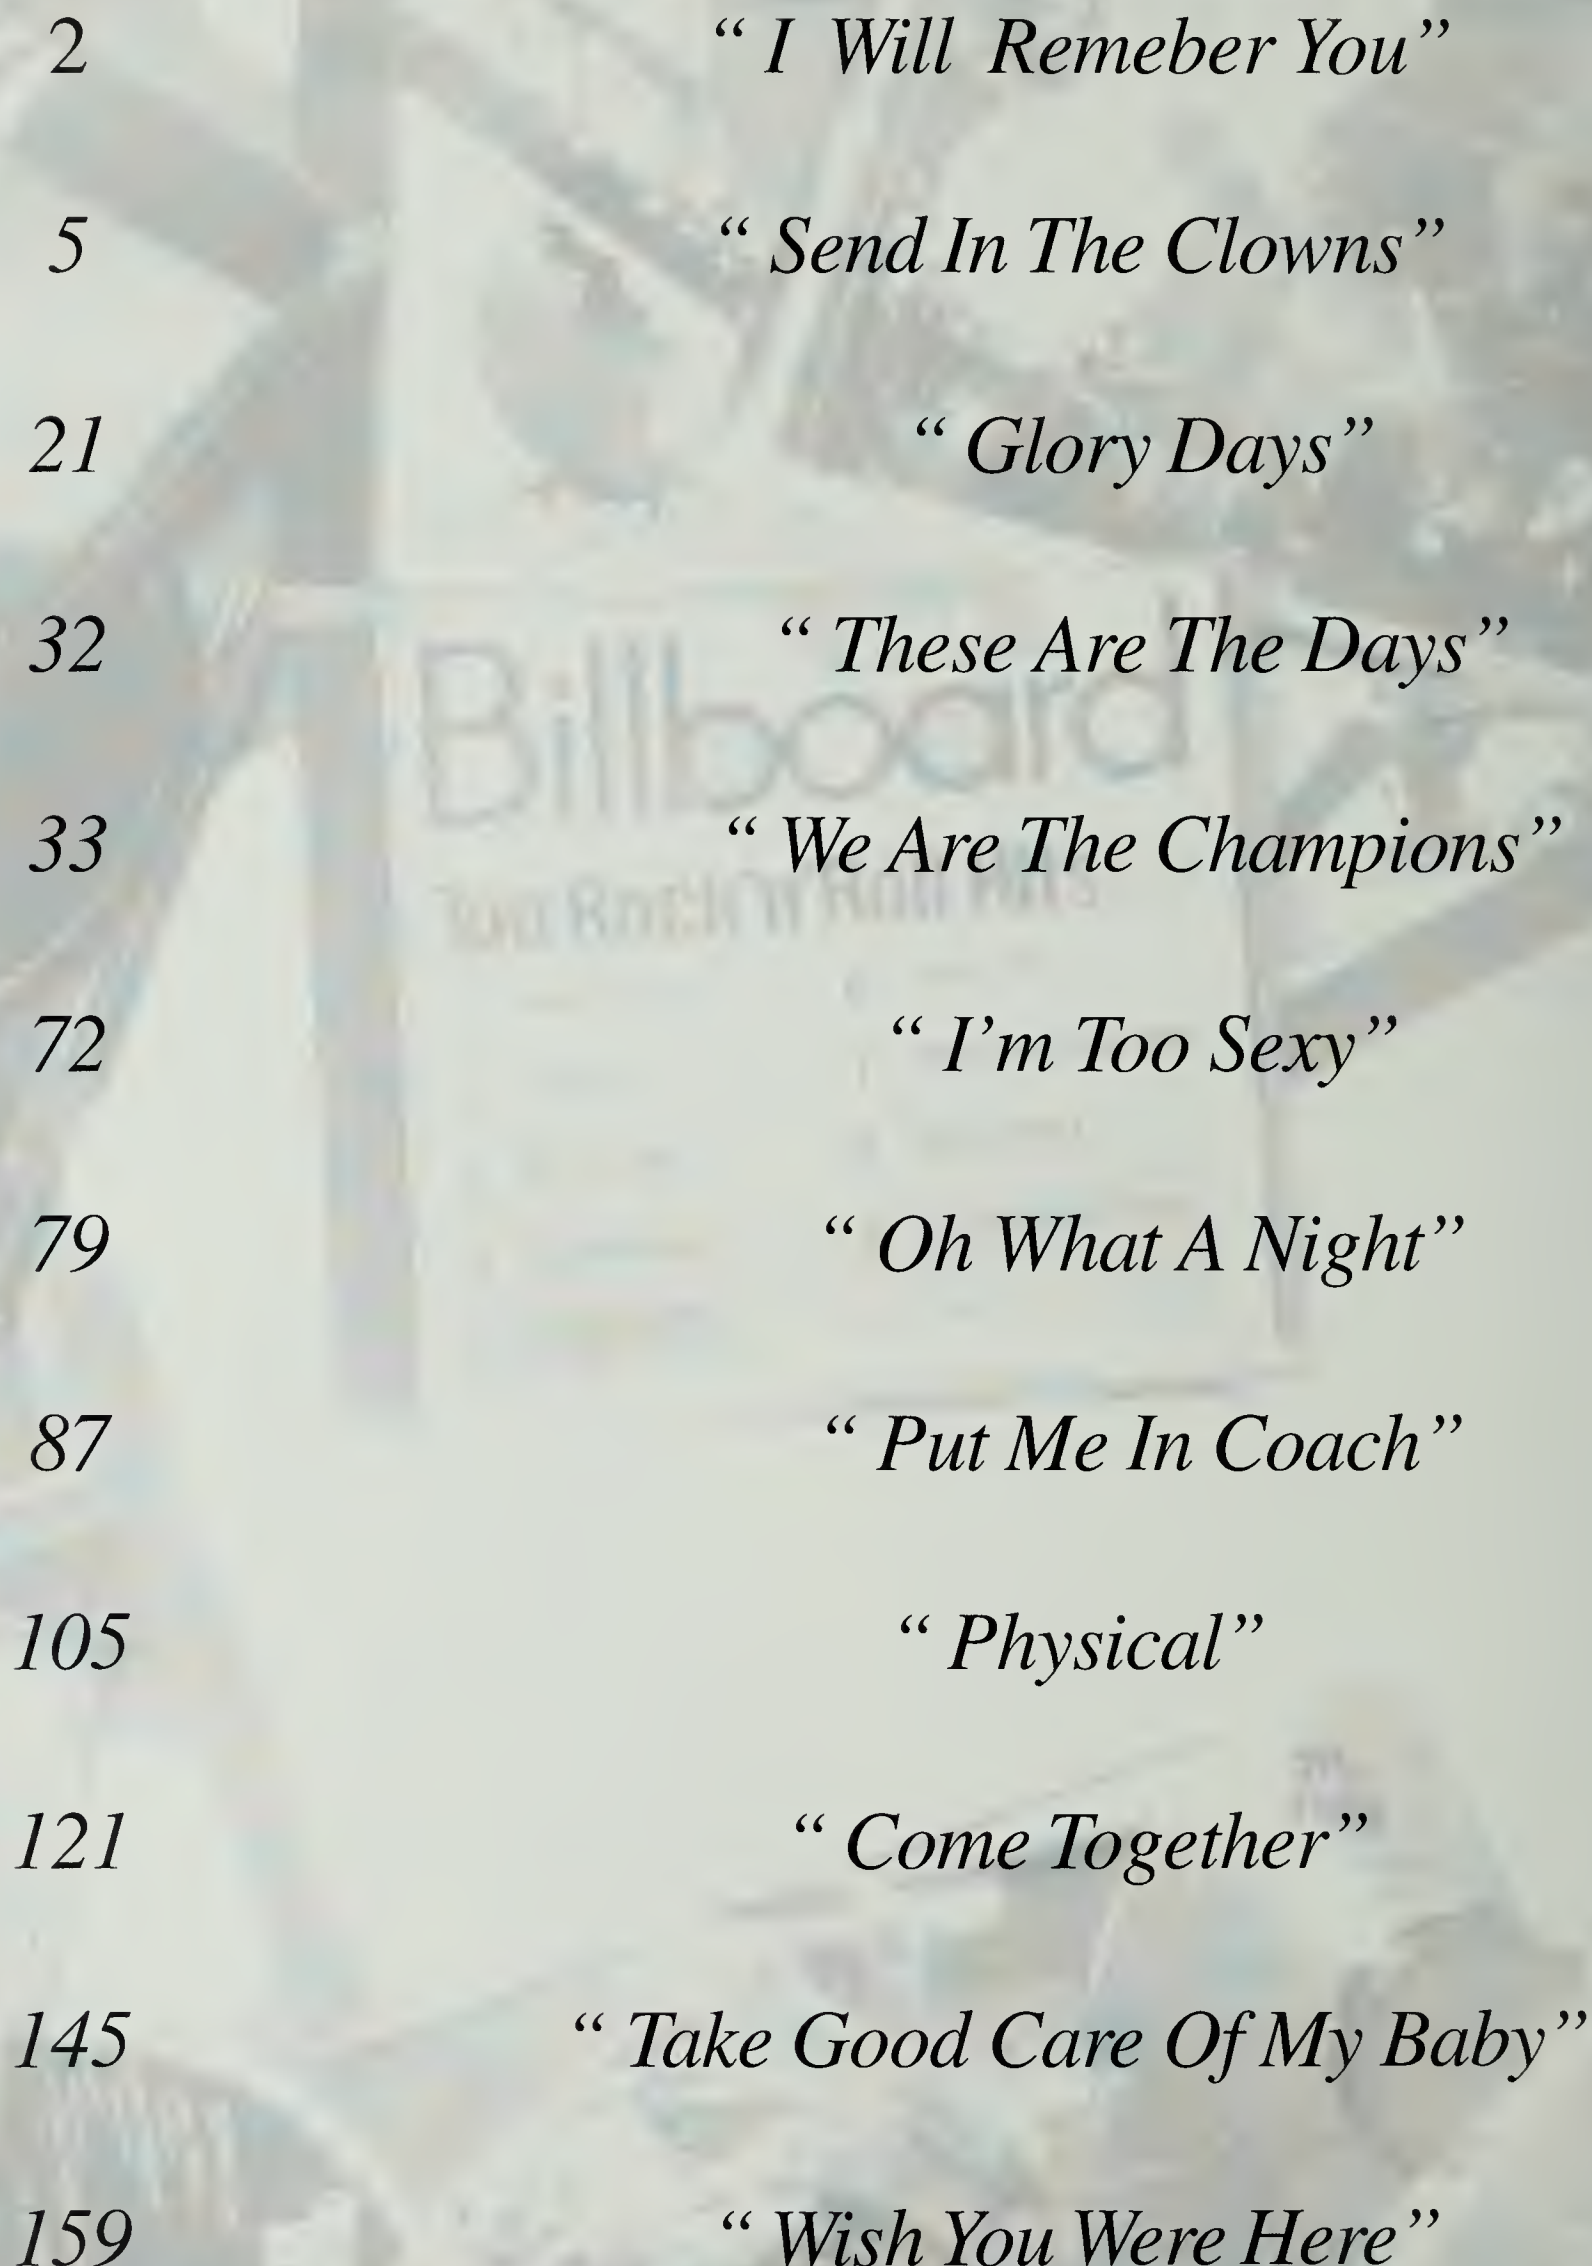

ember You”

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL EILEEN M. FEENEY

Assistant Principal Feeney has been one of the significant leaders of the North Quincy High School community for 20 years. Her work with the students has been un-parallel. With a busy schedule she still has time to interact with the students by leading them in the Pride Committee and also the Ambassadors program. The class of 1998 would like to take this opportunity to thank Mrs. Feeney for her outstanding devotion to the students at North Quincy High School. Mrs. Feeney, we salute you.

You only have one life. It can end in a heart beat. Live life to its fullest. Live each day as if it were your last. Do everything. See to it that on your dying day, you are content with your life lived. All men die, but not every man lives. Knowledge of the truth is the ultimate power. The truth leads to freedom. The price of freedom is eternal vigilance. Rather die free than live oppressed. Navy Seals, wait for me. I'll be with you soon.

"The choices we make today, dictate the life we lead." To all my friends and acquaintances, live long and prosper. Let not that frown or cold hello disturb you, but rejoice in the fact that we are headed as for any day, toward a new beginning. For all who love and have been loved, will remain in my heart without a thought surpassed, but now the chapter must turn. Goodbye class of 98, by the way lifes a party, drink it up. Cheers to change. Life is what you make it. Diversity is Devine. Someday I will rule. It will be a great day when our schools get all the money they need and the Air Force has to hold a bake sale to buy a bomber. Appearance isn't everything. What you all thought was never true. No matter what you believe I'm not normal, odd, cute, ugly. I am what I am to the only loves in my life: Katie Bri Danielle Jill Molly Adam J. Knowles loves Katie Rae Cadogan

My life in NQHS is ending, and what else can I say besides Thank God!!Actually it is kind of sad since I spent alot of fun times here. Well besides getting beat up and scarred for life, but each scar has a memory. I made some good friends here and I learned alot that will aid me in life. School has prepared me for life's challenges, mostly defending myself, but other stuff I learned will serve its purpose.

“Oh What A Night”

A black and white photograph of eight young women standing in a row, posing for a formal portrait. They are all wearing elegant, floor-length evening gowns. The women are arranged in a slightly staggered line, with some looking directly at the camera and others looking slightly to the side. The background is dark and appears to be an indoor setting with some decorative elements visible on the left. The lighting is soft, highlighting the women's faces and the details of their dresses.

Weymouth divided on how much reform is enough

"It's time to cut off some of the arms off the octopus. It sounds drastic, but is it more drastic than what we have now?"

— Selectman David Chandler

By Sonia Lelli
The Patriot Ledger

WEYMOUTH — The Charter Commission, created by voters in May in response to growing financial concerns, has been getting everybody's two cents worth on what needs to be changed to make Weymouth town government function better.

The complaints have ranged from the need to televise school committee meetings to the need to bring the accountant, treasurer-tax collector and assessor under a chief financial officer's overall authority.

But, more recently, two selectmen offered the most politically explosive advice yet: Abolish the appointed personnel board and independently-elected boards for public works, health, parks and recreation, assessor's office, and bring their department heads under the selectmen's control.

"It's time to cut off some of the arms off the octopus," said David Chandler, a selectman for 3 1/2 years. "It sounds drastic, but is it more drastic than what we have now? We are in a drastic situation."

Fifty-nine officials are elected to 11 independent boards in Weymouth town government. Boards that govern the DPW, parks and recreation, health, personnel and the assessor's office have control over $18.5 million of the town's $85 million annual budget.

They supervise the work of 124 town employees. These departments have a significant impact on the way the town is governed but sometimes, some selectmen say, these boards have become isolated fiefdoms.

"We have no control over them," Chandler said. "These boards have their own directors, their own staff and own budget. I'm just finally saying what everyone else is saying in private."

Chandler has an ally in Selectman Bill Ryan. "We are a town of 54,000 people, an $85 million budget," Ryan said. "You can't continue using a 300-year-old form of government. As wonderful as these traditions are, as enchanting as they seem, we have to be practical. We have to change. And that means eliminating some boards."

Weymouth is celebrating the 375th anniversary of its founding this year, but it has never had a charter, a document that formally outlines a government structure. Instead, it has been governed by a patchwork of local bylaws and state laws.

During May's town election, voters overwhelmingly approved the establishment of a charter commission to come up with recommendations for a new government structure. The plan is expected to go before the voters in 1999.

Under state law, the charter commission suggests several forms of government, including converting Weymouth from a town to a city, appointing a chief administrative officer.

Charter commission members have met weekly with department heads, board members and town employees to learn their preferences and

6 teens treated for drug overdose

By Della Klemovich
The Patriot Ledger

ARLINGTON — Six teenagers who apparently swallowed prescription pills to get high ended up in the hospital last night.

It was the second time this year that a group of Massachusetts teenagers overdosed on prescription pills.

The teens, four boys and two girls ages 15 to 18, were brought to the Symmes Hospital and Medical Center emergency room over several hours beginning in the early evening.

One remained under observation in the emergency room this morning. Two girls and a boy were transferred to Children's Hospital, one was transferred to the Lahey-Hitchcock Clinic in Burlington and another was taken home by parents "against medical advice," said Julie Corwin, a Symmes spokeswoman.

The teens' symptoms were extremely low blood pressure, extreme sleepiness and slurred speech. All are expected to recover.

A Children's Hospital spokeswoman said the teens had apparently ingested a drug called clozapine, a prescription anti-depressant and anti-psychotic.

Arlington police were notified by the hospitals and are investigating.

In February, 14 Woburn teenagers were hospitalized in critical condition after taking overdoses of baclofen, an uncommon form of muscle relaxant, before a Friday night dance.

The teens, most of them girls ages 13 and 14 who were members of a middle school cheerleading squad, starting passing out and were rushed to hospitals in grave condition.

Several of the teens lay in comas for 24 hours or more, but none suffered any permanent physical damage from the drugs.

In March, two Walpole middle school students each took a handful of pills at school, apparently a combination of antacids, over the counter sleeping aids and some pills belonging to one of the girl's mothers. Both were hospitalized.

Also in March, as many as nine Silver Lake Junior High School students took doses of headache pills that had been prescribed for an adult. None were injured, but all were suspended from school for up to 10 days.

Ledger appeals ruling in Sharon alcohol case

By Lauren Wiley
The Patriot Ledger

STOUGHTON — A judge has opened to the public the trial in juvenile court of a Sharon couple accused of serving alcohol to high school freshmen, but banned the news media from identifying juveniles who testified they were drinking.

The Patriot Ledger will appeal the judge's order to the state Supreme Court on the grounds that it is unconstitutional to restrict coverage of the criminal trial of adults.

Juvenile court proceedings generally are closed to the public except for cases in which minors are charged with specific serious crimes. The trial of adults in juvenile court is restricted to cases in which they are charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Responding to a motion by The Patriot Ledger, Juvenile Court Judge Mary McCallum entered an order yesterday allowing the public and press to attend the trial and to have access to court records in the case against Robert and Andrea Berkowitz of Sharon.

However, she prohibited publishing of the names, addresses or any information that would identify the 10 minors who have accused the couple of serving them beer and liquor during a June pool party at the Berkowitz home. They are 14 and 15 years old.

The Berkowitzes each were charged with 10 counts of serving alcohol to a minor and 10 counts of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The case was transferred out of adult court in August based on a state law that gives juvenile courts jurisdiction over charges of contributing to delinquency of a minor.

The law says nothing about moving to juvenile court cases in which adults are charged with providing alcohol to minors. The Berkowitzes' attorney said yesterday it was appropriate to move the entire case to juvenile court because the charges of providing alcohol were linked to charges of contributing to delinquency.

Last year, two Plymouth County residents were charged in high-profile cases with buying alcohol for underage drinkers and contributing to delinquency. The proceedings against them were conducted in district court sessions open to the public.

Both cases were prompted by the alcohol-related

Monument's repair costs are on Target

Store chain leads effort to pick up $5M tab

By Lawrence L. Knutson
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Washington Monument, the towering exclamation point on the capital's skyline, will soon undergo repairs that will wrap its marble blocks in a web of scaffolding until the end of the century.

But the government George Washington helped establish will not be picking up the tab to patch his memorial, modernize its heating and cooling, replace its elevator or seal the eight tiptop windows tourists use to survey the city that bears his name.

Instead, the Target department store chain is leading a private corporate effort to pay the $5 million bill public in 1888.

For most of the restoration, the monument will remain open to visitors.

Target is putting up the first $1 million and rounding up other donors to pay the rest of the bill. Donors include Kodak, Procter & Gamble, 3M, Visa, Coca-Cola, Neutrogena, the EMI-Capitol Music Group and country-western singer Garth Brooks.

General Electric is developing a lighting system for nighttime illumination of scaffolding designed by architect Michael Graves. To be erected next June, the scaffolding and a transparent covering are designed to blend in with the monu-

Nanny's defense opens

Prosecution ends seven days of testimony

Patriot Ledger news services

CAMBRIDGE — Attorneys for British au pair Louise Woodward began building their case in court today for her acquittal on a first-degree murder charge in the death of a Newton infant in her care.

Through seven days of televised testimony, the case has focused attention on the nanny system of caring for the children of working couples and on the so-called shaken-baby death syndrome.

"We see something like this and ... we assess blame," said Caryll Rivers, a Boston University professor and co-author of a book about working couples. "But we do it unfairly."

Would the public, she asked "blame a mother if her child was playing the front yard and a car left was a working mother, we'd blame her."

"You simply cannot wrap your children in Saran Wrap and protect them from all the terrible things out there."

Woodward, 19, is accused of shaking 8-month-old Matthew Eappen so violently last February that he died five days later of a blood clot on his brain and a fractured skull.

Dr. Eli Newberger, a pediatrician at Children's Hospital and a nationally recognized specialist on child abuse, testified earlier this week that the injuries were comparable with those of a child falling out of a second story window onto a concrete sidewalk.

Attorney Barry Scheck is leading Woodward's defense. He was also a member of the legal team that successfully defended O.J. Simpson

THOUGHTS

The 1997 girls soccer team had an exceptional season, finishing with a 9-6-4 record. The highlight of the season was qualifying for the state tournament for the first time in the history of the school, ending a 20 year drought of post-season play. Despite a loss in the first round to Marshfield, the entire program gained a new respect.

Missed Chances Cost NQ Against Falmouth

Red Raiders Host Silver Lake Saturday

LIAM FITZGERALD
Coming off a road victory in its season opener at North Quinns High school hockey team, the visiting Falmouth squad last Saturday night and dropped a 3-0 decision.

The Red Raiders (1-1-0) visited Barnstable Monday night and travel to Duxbury for an 8 a.m. contest today (Wednesday). NQ hosts Silver Lake Saturday at 7:45 p.m. and New Bedford next Monday at 7 p.m.

In the Old Colony League loss to the visiting Clippers, both teams had their chances offensively, but North could not solve the tough Falmouth keeper.

"The key to the game was Falmouth's controlling on rebounds and their crucial passes, and we didn't capitalize on our chances," said head coach Don Doyle, in his first varsity season after eight years of coaching North's junior varsity squad.

"They kept it in our zone and made it difficult for us to mount an offensive attack. They also responded well to our forechecking and took us out of our game."

The Red Raiders fell behind, 2-0, after one period. Falmouth's Hunter Greeley opened the scoring at 3:48 of the opening period, collecting a rebound and sending the puck past junior goalie Chris Carthas.

The Red Raiders, meanwhile, had their share of opportunities, including a scoring chance by junior left wing Ryan Barron, but they were unable to capitalize.

With just 49 seconds left in the first stanza, the Clippers slipped the puck by Carthas for a 2-0 advantage.

Neither team scored in the second period, though North had numerous chances to get on the board. Senior captain and center Mike Powers carried the puck the length of the ice, but had his shot turned away. Soon after, Powers came in with the puck but again came up empty.

North's Paul Markarian, a junior who plays both offense and defense, skated in with the puck, only to knock the net off its hinges as he entered the crease.

The Clippers pushed their lead to 3-0 early in the third period when Greeley netted his second goal, again off a rebound in front of the net. The tally came at the 13:57 mark of the final stanza.

Again, the Red Raiders pressured the Falmouth goalie but were unable to get on the scoreboard. Junior right wing T.J. Wilson, senior left wing and captain John Barron, senior right wing and captain Bill Walker, Powers and Markarian were all denied in the third.

"I was encouraged by the fact that our kids never surrendered," said Doyle. "Even after the third goal, when they easily could've rolled over and given up, they kept at it. If they keep plugging away, more good things will come."

"We're trying to instill a sense of discipline and return to an aggressive style of hockey. We're also stressing teamwork and keeping a positive attitude. We don't have a whole lot of size and strength, so we'll have to outwork and outsmile our opponents. We have a lot of young, hard workers who are contributing in every game."

The Red Raiders were shorthanded due to the absence of sophomore defenseman Bill Griffin, who missed the game for academic disciplinary reasons, according to Doyle.

"Not having Bill hurt us because we had to use Paul (Markarian) more on defense, which took us out of our offense a bit," he added.

Earlier in the week, the North opened its season with a 5-2 OCL victory at Plymouth South last Wednesday night.

North got on the board first when Walker scored on a feed from Powers less than eight minutes into the first period.

Late in the second Powers set up sophomore defenseman Ross O'Driscoll for a power play goal and a 2-0 lead. North scored two goals early in the third, the first by junior left wing Chad Fitzpatrick. Powers also netted a goal for the Red Raiders.

The Panthers' battle back, scoring twice to cut NQ's lead to 4-2. Barron, though, sealed the victory with an empty-net goal with 25 seconds left in the game.

Carthas excelled in between the pipes for North, turning away 20 shots and holding Plymouth South scoreless until late in the third.

Joining Doyle on the staff are first-year assistants Mark Boussy, who will coach the JV, and Chris Foley, who will guide the freshman squad. North's volunteer assistants are Tom Bouque, a social studies teacher at NQHS, along with Larry Costello, Andrew Vermette and Dennis Patras.

THOUGHTS

QUOTE: This years wrestling team was young and unexperienced. Although, as a team, we didn't win many matches, the season was a success. The kids got the experience of wrestling in meets and tournaments, which will give them an opportunity to win more as their career develops. I admire all the wrestlers for their hard work and dedication.

The girls winter track team ended its season with an impressive 4 & 3 record, beating Barnstable, Plymouth South, Taunton, Quincy. The team was lead by seniors Jasmine Gonzalez, Sharon Lee, Claire Quilty, Nicole Bertone, and Christy Deptula along with Many other talented athletes. The most memorable time of the season were the Dartmouth relays. There ended up being more than one relay: One that had to do with track & one that... well, didn't. Ish! Thanks Coach Chrisom & Jeremy. Thanks for the spoons Moe, and may the legendary Geoff (lizard) Hennessey live on! Good luck future NQ trackies

Because of a significant decrease in the numbers of members on the team, the North Quincy High School Swimming Team only won one meet this season. However, there are several members who performed very well this year. In diving, freshman, Pat McGovern finished 8th place in the pilgrim conference meet. Seniors, Jacky Cheung & Carl Ehrens were awarded Pilgrim All-Star in the Pilgrim Conference Meet. Karl Ehrens also advanced to the state championship. During the season our members showed consistent sportsmanship during all the meets which established a superb reputation among other teams.

THOUGHTS

The 97-98 V. Basketball season was full of good times and bad times! This group of young men were at first just players, but later grew to be like family. Competing at a level where no one believed they could compete. even though destiny ran out on this great bunch of kids in the first round of the state tournament, the season was full of wonderful memories. Bouts to Whoop Yo @$$ (C) Brian Ross

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

The Senior class officers, student council and student union worked together their senior year to accomplish all the responsibilities they had. This year would not have been successful without the help of the class advisor, Mrs. Mary Gralton. The decorating, fundraising, and organization of the Senior events were all overseen and assisted by her. With the combined effort of the advisor, officers, council and union members, we had a very memorable Senior year!

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS:

President- Kevin Ann
Vice-President- Marybeth Feeney
Treasurer- Alma Batac
Secretary- Sarah Beston

SENIOR STUDENT UNION AND COUNCIL

SENIOR STUDENT UNION AND COUNCIL:

Student Council: Erin Tormey, Merry Rugg, Erin Rooney, and Katie Sweetser
Student Union: Laurie Flynn, Sara Beston, and Kerry Twomey

CLASS OFFICERS:

It is the duty of the class officers to represent their grade in all academic and social events at North. The Freshman and Sophomore officers have the responsibility of the semiformal dance in June. The Junior and Senior officers have the proms in April and May. Every class participates in the Turkey Day Rally that all class officers and student council members help with the decorating, along with the volunteers in their class. It is an honor for any student to be voted an officer of their class.

CLASS OFFICERS

STUDENT COUNCIL UNION

The student council and student union work with the class officers for all the major school functions that their office is required at. The student council has their own homeroom, the Trophy Room, and their advisor is Mr. Gizzarelli. They hold their own meeting where their officers preside. They discuss any complaints or procedures at North. The student union hold their own meeting with their advisor, Mr. Ambrazijus. They discuss, along with other schools how things at North could be improved.

RENAISSANCE

Renaissance is a program of about 60 students, juniors and seniors. It is held every day during 9th and 10th period. There are six majors that students are allowed to choose, and then try out for. They include Art, Dance, Instrumental, Photo, Theater, and Voice. These disciplines are run under the direction of six very talented teachers. Mr. Melzack is the head of the Photo majors, he is new this year, following in the foot steps of the great Mr. Gostanian, and he is doing a wonderful job. Directing the dancers is Ms. D'Arcangelo who also teaches Italian, she has been dancing for many years and had a professional dance career with the Boston Ballet. Instrumental is run by Mr. Kenneally, during period 9 he directs the band and during 10th period he helps the Renaissance students with the various projects they are working on. Art is run by Mr. Burgess, Mr. Burgess is a veteran of the art department and is loved by his students, he works daily with them on many different pieces of art. Theater has been run by Mr. Moffet since the beginning of the program, he is also the chairperson of the program. He was just appointed the position of Head of the English department and had to give up his theater class. Luckily, it has been taken over by Miss Carol who now is working hard to make her students disciplined actors and actresses. Mrs. Schutz is the voice teacher, she works with a small group of students each day. She teaches different techniques that help lead to a better and more developed voice. Twice a week the students have minors where the major teachers teach students that they don't regularly have the basics of their skill. Renaissance has been going strong for about five years and one of the only programs of its kind in New England. We're hoping it will be this successful for many years to come.

Robert Burgess

John Gostanian

Esther Schutz

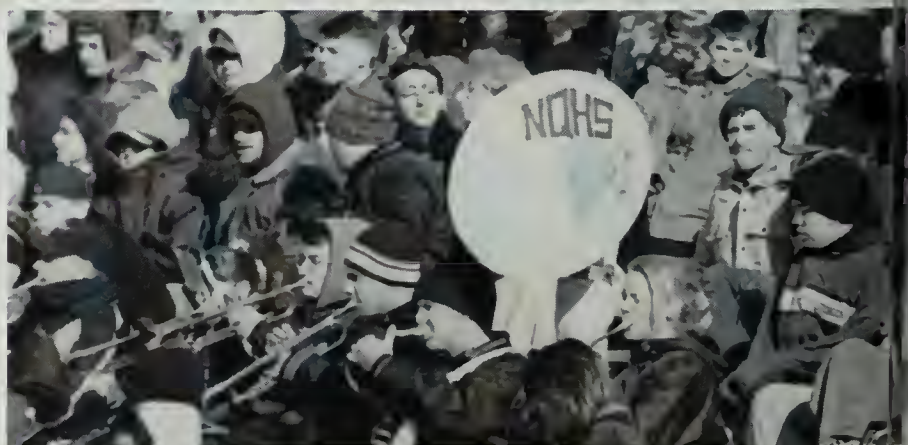

The above teachers are all leaving the North Quincy and Renaissance communities. John Gostanian retired at the end of the 1996/1997 school year. He took time out of his retirement to help the students occasionally this year. Robert Burgess is also leaving us this year, he has given a great deal to North Quincy through his creativity and imagination in teaching his students to love art. Another teacher who will be very missed is Esther Schutz, she has been a wonderful teacher to the voice majors. All these teachers have given so much to North Quincy, and their excellence and expertise will be very missed by their fellow faculty and the many students they have taught over the years.

“Wish You Were Here”

Tommy Gilmartin

1980-1992

For someone who never walked through the halls of North Quincy, Tommy Gilmartin was filled with more Raider Spirit than anyone who ever has. While most of us were home after school, Tommy would be at the football field inspiring the team. Not only did Tommy show compassion for the football team, but he also showed so much love for his family and friends by keeping everyone's spirits up even while he was struggling. Not a single day passes when those close to Tommy don't think about him. Tommy was a great friend to all of us and he is missed greatly. Tommy will always be in our hearts.
